1. Safeguarding children and young people (child protection) policy statement

1.1 Tell Us North CIC (TUN) recognises that:

- The welfare of the child is paramount (Children Act 1989).
- All children and young people regardless of age, disability, gender, racial heritage, religious belief, sexual orientation, or identity, have the right to equal protection from all types of harm or abuse.
- It is not the responsibility of staff and volunteers to decide whether child abuse is occurring, but it is their responsibility to act on child protection concerns and do something about it.
- Working in partnership with children, young people, their parents, carers, and other agencies is essential in promoting children's and young people's welfare.

1.2 The purpose of this policy is to:

- Support the recognition of and prevention of harm by raising awareness of abuse and neglect in children and young people.
- Provide staff and volunteers with guidance on the procedures they should adopt if they suspect a child or young person may be experiencing or be at risk of harm.
- Offer protection for the children and young people who receive TUN services including the children of adult clients and members.

1.3 The policy applies to all directors, committee members, staff, associates, and volunteers working on behalf of TUN.

1.4 For the purposes of child protection legislation, the term 'child' refers to anyone up to the age of 18 years.

1.5 TUN will seek to safeguard children and young people by:

- Valuing them, listening to them, and respecting them.
- Employ staff and volunteers using stringent recruitment processes.
- Ensuring all staff and volunteers, complete mandatory safeguarding induction training regardless of their role.
- Having strong child protection policies and procedures, including a code of conduct for staff and volunteers.
- Sharing information about safeguarding and good practice with children, parents, carers, staff, and volunteers.
- Recognising that of the children in need of child protection and social care support, many have parents with mental health issues, substance misuse concerns or incidences of domestic violence.
- Sharing information about concerns with agencies that need to know and involving parents and children appropriately.
- Providing effective management for TUN staff and volunteers through support, supervision, and training.
- Having effective complaints and whistleblowing policies in place.
- Including consideration of child visitors and young clients in TUN risk analysis and procedures on the use of the Tell Us North office and facilities.

- 1.6 TUN will review its safeguarding policy, procedures, and practice annually or where there is a significant change.

5. What is abuse? A description of the different categories of abuse

5.1 There are four types of abuse outlined in Working Together to Safeguard Children 2018:

- Physical abuse — Female Genital Mutilation (FGM), hitting, shaking, throwing, poisoning, punching, burning, or scalding, drowning, suffocating, or otherwise causing harm to the child. Physical harm may also be caused when a parent or carer fabricates the symptoms of or deliberately induces, illness in a child-
- Emotional abuse — can cause severe and adverse effects on the child's emotional development. It may involve the child having feelings of being unworthy, unloved, and inadequate, prevented from expressing their views, deliberately silencing them, or making fun of how they communicate, name calling, bullying, cyberbullying, causing fear, discriminatory (including homophobic, racist, sexist, or based on a person's disability or faith).
- Sexual abuse — Sexual abuse involves forcing a child to take part in sexual activity rape, inappropriate touching or physical contact including indecent assault by penetration, non-penetrative sexual activity such as masturbation, kissing, rubbing, and rubbing outside of clothing, watching pornography, sexual exploitation.

- Neglect — is the persistent failure to meet a child's needs whether physical or psychological-, acts of omission, leaving in soiled clothes, failing to feed properly, leaving alone, failure to protect them from physical and emotional harm or danger, failure to ensure access to medical care or treatment. It may also include neglect of, or unresponsiveness to, a child's basic emotional needs.

5.2 In addition to these four types of abuse, all staff, volunteers, etc. should be aware of the following:

- Child sexual exploitation

Child sexual exploitation is a form of child sexual abuse. It occurs where an individual or group takes advantage of an imbalance of power to coerce, manipulate or deceive a child or young person under the age of 18 into sexual or criminal activity (a) in exchange for something the victim needs or wants, and/or (b) for the financial advantage or increased status of the perpetrator or facilitator through violence or the threat of violence. The victim which, can involve both males and females may have been sexually exploited even if the sexual activity appears consensual. Child sexual exploitation does not always involve physical contact; it can also occur using technology. Included also are children who have been trafficked for the purposes of exploitation.

- Honour based violence

Honour based violence and abuse can take many forms, for example, threatening behaviour and verbal abuse, control (financial psychological, and physical), family disownment, assault, rape, kidnap, abduction, forced abortion, threats to kill, and false imprisonment, isolation and restriction or freedom committed due to so called 'honour'. Murders in the name of 'so-called' honour, (often called honour killings) are murders in which predominantly women are killed for actual or perceived immoral behaviour which is deemed to have brought shame on the family.

- Radicalisation

The process of a person being influenced or coerced into supporting or being involved in violent extremist ideologies including terrorism.

- Trafficking

Any child tricked, forced, or persuaded to leave their homes and transported for exploitative reasons such as, forced to work or sold is considered to be a trafficking victim.

- Female Genital Mutilation (FGM)

All acts of FGM are a crime in the UK and the girls and women subjected to FGM are victims of this crime. The act of FGM on female children under the age of 18 is also a form of child abuse. There is, therefore, a mandatory duty to refer disclosures of FGM to the police.

5.3 Everyone has a responsibility of reporting child abuse/suspected child abuse.

- Abuse may be carried out deliberately or unknowingly.
- Abuse may be a single act or repeated acts.
- Abuse can happen anywhere, but research indicates that the perpetrators of such abuse are likely to be known and trusted by the child or young person.
- Children with special educational needs and disabilities can face additional safeguarding challenges.

6. How to recognise the signs of abuse

- 6.1 It is not always easy to recognise signs of abuse, but it is important for you to have an idea about some of the signs to look out for when you're concerned about a child.
- 6.2 It is useful to look at two areas — physical signs and behavioural signs. They include injuries that a child cannot explain or explains unconvincingly, injuries that have not been treated, being constantly hungry and unkempt, running away, and sudden or unexplained changes in normal behaviour.
- 6.3 TUN recognises that in cases of FGM, there may be no other safeguarding children concerns. TUN recognises that there should be increased awareness of FGM when working with clients from certain populations assessed as at risk by Public Health, i.e., women and girls from countries where there is a prevalence of FGM.

7. Risk assessment: mapping TUN work where there may be contact with children and young people under 18.

- 7.1 While the majority of TUN services are not provided directly to children, areas, where there may be contact with children or services for children, include:
- Healthwatch Newcastle.
 - Healthwatch Gateshead.
 - Events, information stands, crèche provision.
 - Use of office by the public.
 - Community groups/activities.
 - Work in schools/colleges.
- 7.2 Examples of work currently undertaken by TUN where a concern may arise:
- An enquirer using the information/signposting service who is under 18.
 - An outreach worker sees something or is told something during an outreach session.
 - During a visit to the office, the behaviour of a child or young person.
 - A volunteer sees or is told something while on a formal visit to a care service.
 - TUN staff member sees something or is told something while on a visit to another organisation.

8. How to respond to a child or young person who is telling you about abuse.

- Respond in a way appropriate to the child's age and understanding.
- Reassure the child or young person concerned; abuse is not their fault.
- Listen to what they are saying.

- Record what you have been told or have witnessed as soon as possible.
- Remain calm and do not show shock or disbelief.
- Tell the child or young person that the information will be treated seriously.
- Do not start to investigate or ask detailed or probing questions.
- Do not promise to keep it a secret.

8.1 If you witness abuse or abuse has just taken place, the priorities will be to (the sequence of priorities will depend on the circumstances):

- Call an ambulance if required.
- Call the police if a crime has been committed.
- Keep yourself, staff, children, and clients safe.
- Preserve evidence.
- Inform the DSL in TUN.
- Record what happened on the Children's Safeguarding Log.

Safeguarding children at risk

Safeguarding is everyone's business – if you are concerned about a child, you have a duty of care and must take appropriate action.

A person is a child until their 18th birthday and all organisations who work with or come in to contact with children should ensure every child has equal protection from harm. A child protection response may be necessary in any case where a child or young person under the age of 18 years may have been abused or may be at risk of abuse.

If you are concerned about a person over the age of 18 years, refer to Adult's safeguarding policy and procedures.
